

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of friction stir welding together at least two metallic workpieces, including the step of applying at or adjacent a heated welding zone a cryogen in the form of at least one jet. The cryogen may be solid carbon dioxide. The workpieces may be of aluminium or an aluminium alloy.